JIBC as a Peer-Reviewed Journal

The credibility of JIBC in the academic, executive and professional circles is quite high. As the Publisher, I'm getting numerous requests from academic institutions to permit placement of JIBC articles on various university and academic networks. Even though strictly speaking such permission is only required from the copyright holders (i.e., our authors), to all of our publishing team and the Editorial Board it serves as a useful indicator of the universal popularity, respect and innovation for our journal.

Spearheaded by Prof. Joshua Fogel, JIBC Editorial Board strives to list our Journal in leading search engines and academic reference publications. In particular, JIBC is well represented in Google and Yahoo search engines, the Directory of Open Access Journals and EBSCO.

I am asking fellow JIBC editors, authors and readers to pass to Prof. Fogel, JIBC Chief Editor Prof. Nikhil Agarwal or myself your suggestions in which other reference publications we should list JIBC. Being at the leading edge of the emerging field of study and on the boundary between various research subjects, JIBC might be listed in numerous reference databases. Please do help us to spread the news of its publication around the globe.

Again, I am asking each and every one of you, our readers and subscribers, to email JIBC to at least 3 of your colleagues, friends and discussion groups that you are participating at, and recommend that they also subscribe.

As well, I am challenging all the current and past authors and editors to email your articles -- along with the rest of JIBC edition -- to at least 10 of your peers and colleagues in academia, government and industry. Make sure they are aware of your articles and the Journal of Internet Banking and Commerce. Recommend that they also subscribe to email editions. After all, we send it around just 2-3 times a year.

A special appeal to ecommerce/ebusiness students to pass a word about JIBC to your professors and classmates and, more important, to ask them to supply new articles and tell everybody to subscribe.

Let's spread the word!
